

Corporate Social Responsibility: Mutually-Beneficial Strategies for Business and Community. Is NZ keeping up?

Brian Gallagher, President of United Way Worldwide will Speak on the Importance of Philanthropy within the Current Economic Environment

For over 118 years, United Way has focused on mobilizing the caring power of communities and making a difference in people's lives.

Brian Gallagher became President and Chief Executive Officer of United Way of America in 2002 and then of United Way Worldwide in 2009. In 2002, he immediately took on the challenge of leading the transformation of the organization to focus on community impact.

A career veteran of the United Way system, Gallagher believes that the true measure of success for United Way and other philanthropic organizations is bottom-line results: the lives that are changed and the communities that are shaped. This represents a dynamic shift from the United Way recognized in the USA for decades as the nation's premier fund raiser and distributor. Gallagher has raised the bar on the accountability, governance and transparency standards adopted as a requirement of membership for all United Ways. Today United Way has 1,800 local affiliates in 45 countries and territories raising $5.1 billion annually, with 11 million donors and 2.5 million volunteers.
